BROUGHAM OYER BOY AND ON

PURSUIT FOLLOWS DOWN CROWD-ED FIFTH AVENUE.

S. F. B. Morse, Sully's Partner, Overtook the Stolld Coachman-Mrs. Rhinelander Walde, Whom He Was Driving, Says He Nearly Ran Down Two Others.

Michael Chicia, an Italian boy, was on his way home to 26 Spring street yesterday afternoon, on his bicycle after a ride in Central Park. Coming south on Fifth avenue, which was full of carriages, he kept well in toward the west curb and at Thirty-second street he was abreast of a brougham driven by Charles Schmidt for Seaman's stables. In the brougham were Mrs. Gertrude Rhinelander Waldo and her sister Miss Laura V. Rhinelander of 31 East Seventy-second street. They were going to the home of a friend in Twenty-sixth street.

At Thirty-second street the boy on the wheel pedalled faster and swerved in ahead of the team that Schmidt was driving. Before he could get his wheel going straight again the horses struck and unseated him. The boy went under the team with a yell and the pedestrians and the occupants of a dozen other vehicles saw the wheels go over him, leaving him bruised and bleeding in the roadway. Schmidt drove on.

S. F. B. Morse of the firm of D. J. Sully & Co. was coming up the avenue in a hansom with his wife. Mr. Morse was for jumping out of the hansom and getting the injured boy out of the roadway, but when he saw that others were attending to that he ordered his driver to turn about and put after the brougham.

The hansom driver made quick time to Thirty-first street, where the driver of the brougham had turned west. In the wake of the hansom were several other rigs, with twenty or thirty men giving chase on cot. The pursuers yelled loudly for the brougham to stop but Schmidt kept his eyes front, wherever his ears were. He took his whip to the horses when he got into the side street.

Mr. Morse and his wife overhauled the brougham a hundred feet east of Broadway and Mr. Morse told the driver he might just as well stop, for the pursuit would be kept up until a policeman hove in sight. While he talked the other pursuers came up and with them a policeman. Mr. Morse had the driver arrested on his com-

Schmidt was kept waiting in the street intil Policeman Gesner found out how badly the bicyclist was hurt. Gesner found the boy sitting on the curb surrounded by a crowd. A stylishly dressed woman knelt beside him trying to stop the flow of blood from several scalp wounds. She had soaked up two linen handkerchiefs but the crowd supplied her with more as she needed them. She did all she could for the boy until Dr. Hutchinson of the New Vork Hospital arrived. So far as he could see the lad was only bruised and cut about the head. He was taken to the hospital.

Gesner then took Mr. Morse's prisoner the Tenderloin station. Mr. Morse and his wife drove to the station in the hansom and Schmidt was allowed to drive there. The two women in the brougham didn't alight, even at the police station, when the brougham was left driverless.

Mr. Morse told Sergeant Boettler that he would go to court and prosecute

"He didn't show any more feeling when he ran over that boy than if the boy was a dog," said Mr. Morse. "He never even attempted to stop his horses."

"I was afraid to stop going," said the risoner, "for there were so many carriages ut I thought I might get poled by the one cllowing me.

When Schmidt found that he was going to be held he asked that the two women waiting outside for him be notified. Serreant Boettler asked them to come into the station house. It was Mrs. Waldo the did the talking and gave her own name nd that of her sister.

"What do you think about the conduct f this ecachman?" Sergeant Boettler asked

Mrs. Waldo. "Well I think he was to blame," replied

Mrs. Waldo.

Later in the evening she said: "My sister and I started out on an errand mercy this afternoon. We drove to Ninetieth street and First avenue in the carriage which we engaged from a livery stable. After leaving the house in Ninetieth street we started downtown to make a call. At Eightieth street and First avenue the driver nearly ran over a little girl, and again at Fifth-ninth street a small boy nar rowly escaped being trampled by the horses

"I was made very nervous by all this, and I told the driver to go to Fifth avenue and drive more carefully. At Thirty second street we felt the carriage run over he boy and my sister collapsed completely was very much worried over her and hurried with her to our home as quickly as possible. My sister is prostrated now As soon as I had taken her home I went to Mr. Seaman, the livery stable keeper, and told him of the driver's queer actions." The boy went home after his head had been dressed. The driver was bailed. RUNAWAYS IN CROWDED PARK.

Conchman Steers Wild Victoria 400 Yards Without Hitting Anything.

The mounted police in Central Park had a busy Easter stopping runaway horses and checking fast drivers. Policeman Edward Oneill, the reinstated "cowboy cop," who was bounced by Devery, stopped one of the runaways

The mounts of A. J. Cowles, W. J. Tyler and H. A. Smith got away from them and were stopped by policemen after lively hases. James Bushbard was thrown at Sixty-third street and the West Drive. His horse was caught a few blocks away.

When the main drive was most crowded in the middle of the afternoon a horse drawng a victoria occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Herman Oppenheim of 1917 Madison avenue and their daughter ran away at Eightysecond street. It had gone 400 yards along the crowded driveway before Policeman Oneill stopped it. Oneill said that but or the skilful manner in which the coachman, James Carey, handled the runaway

The Countess of Minto, who is confined to her bed by a compound fracture of her right leg, occupied temporary quarters in the main building, contiguous to the burned portion. She was awakened by the smell of smoke and was greatly alarmed. Members of the household arrived and, utilizing a screen as a stretcher, removed her to an ante-room, where she regained her composure. Her physicians were summoned and to-night they report the patient resting comfortably and apparently none the worse for the excitement of the early morning.

The fire started in Mr. Guise's room either from the grate or defective wiring. Upon discovering the fire he gave the alarm to the aides and other members of the household. A fire alarm was sent in and the brigade from four stations promptly responded. Meanwhile Capt. Graham and Mr. Guise found their retreat cut off and made their way to the roof. They were rescued by the firemen.

HONOR FOR BEVERIDGE.

Roosevelt Insists That He Be Temporary Chairman at Chicago.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 3.-Local Republicans were interested to-day in reports from Washington that a difference has arisen between President Roosevelt and members of the Republican national committee over the selecting of a temporary chairman for the Chicago convention, the President favoring United States Senator Beveridge for the place and certain members opposing him.

It is said that Senator Beveridge had already paid several visits to the White House and conferred with the President on the matter. There is a disposition in the committeee to act with the entire approval of President Roosevelt but it is understood that a majority of the committee favored the name of Robert G. Cousins of Iowa for the temporary chairmanship. His name was presented to the President. It was at this time the President is alleged to have said:

"How about Beveridge?" It then became known that the President had talked with the Senator on the subject and that Mr. Beveridge supposed the matter was settled. The great objection to him, it is understood, was that he was the junior Senator from Indiana and that, if this State were selected for such an honor,

Senator Fairbanks was entitled to it. ommitted to Beveridge and it is asserted that he insists that the committee select him for the place. A Republican commenting on the story said to-day

"Only for Beveridge and his friends Roosevelt would have been swept off his feet in Indiana by the Hanna movement, and if that had happened Indiana would now be instructing for Charles Warren Fairbanks for President Instead of Roosevelt. It is no wonder Roosevelt is for Beveridge for anything he wants."

LADY MINTO RESCUED FROM FIRE A $90,000 EASTER OFFERING.

RECTOR WRIGLEY OF GRACE CHURCH, BROOKLYN, SURPRISED

He Had Asked for the Raising of a $60,000 Endowment Fund Several Weeks Ago, but He Didn't Think That It, Together With $30,000 More, Would Come,

Ninety thousand dollars was collected in Grace Episcopal Church in Brooklyn resterday morning. It was an Easter offering that surprised the rector, the Rev. Dr. Wrigley, who succeeded Bishop Burgess as rector of the church. Grace Church is one of the oldest Episcopal churches in Brooklyn, and its membership includes many of Brooklyn's richest families. During the last dozen years many changes have taken place on Brooklyn Heights, and the old residences are being encroached upon by apartment houses and hotels.

The Rev. Dr. Wrigley understood the changed condition of affairs, and, being desirous of keeping the church up to its old standing, called the attention of the members some time ago to the facts. He asked for $60,000 to create an endowment fund that would aid the church in carrying on its work in the future. He said th church had at the present time $38,000 in the reserve fund, which with the $60,000 he asked for would come close to making an endowment fund of $100,000.

At the services yesterday morning the Rev. Dr. Wrigley did not say anything more about his scheme, but called for the general Easter offering. After the services he was informed that $90,000 had been given for the fund. It was not in pledges. but in actual cash, as represented in cash and checks. This was $30,000 more than he had asked for and he was greatly elated at the response made to his request of several weeks ago.

The rector said last night that the ordinary income of the church at present was more than sufficient to pay all the running expenses. The money to be set aside for the endowment fund, Dr. Wrigley said, would be invested and allowed to accumulate for twenty years and by that time he hoped the endowment fund would amount to over $200,000, the income from which would be sufficient to carry on the charitable work which the church was en-

The wardens of the church are Henry Pierrepont and John Halstead and the vestrymen are Daniel Chauncey, Wilhelmus Mynderse, Frank Sherman Benson, Robert Gould, George Hewett, Edwin H. Litchfield, E. W. Bullinger and Edward H. Kidder.

In the same church yesterday morning an illuminated window in memory of Mrs Gertrude Lefferts Vanderbilt, one of the founders of the church, was unveiled. The subject of the memorial is "The Angel of Hope." Under the window are these quotations. "I Am the Resurrection and the Life" and "Ye Shall Know Them by Their Fruits." Under all is the inscription "Gertrude Lefferts Vanderbilt, born April 16, 1824, died Jan. 5, 1902."

"RADIUM ITE" AS A CURE-ALL Peculiar Montana Mineral That Keeps You Well When You Carry It.

BUTTE, Mon., April 3 .- Dr. Guy D. Bryant has been making an investigation of the assertion of many miners that a peculiar ore, found in small quantities in several curative properties when carried by them in their pockets. He has made an astonish ing report of his discoveries to the Butte Medical Society, confirming the stories of the miners in cases of rheumatism, stomach ailments, nervous and kindred

Dr. Bryant reports that he has made personal tests and investigated twenty other cases in which benefits or cures were claimed by the patients. He does not attempt to account for the cause of cure, and is awaiting chemical reports from Paris.

The ore emits a violet light on slight friction, and is found in connection with zinc blende, though all zinc blende does not contain that peculiar quality. It is a mineral unknown to chemists here and for want of a better name it has been called radiumite.

Since the first report about the peculiar ore, Dr. Bryant has sent many specimens to physicians and others throughout the country for tests and experiments.

PREACHER HAD AN OIL DEAL. Members of His Flock Sued Him and

Judge Denounced Both Sides. WORCESTER, Mass., April 3.-Judge Samuel Utley, in the Central District Court yesterday forenoon, denounced the Rev. Roland A. Nichols, pastor of the Highland Street Church of Christ in this city and the members of his congregation who had appeared in court to testify in a suit growing out of an oil stock venture of Mr. Nichols.

The plaintiffs were members of the congregation, suing Mr. Nichols for commission money alleged to have been withheld from them by him.

Judge Utley, in concluding his views on the case, said that he could scarcely find words in which to express his disgust at the whole transaction. He characterized the oil stock deal as one of the worst schemes of deliberate theft which had ever come to his attention. His final words were a quotation from the Bible: "My house shall be called the house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves.

SOUTHERN MAN ON TICKET. Gov. Aycock Says It Is fundvisable if th Democrats Look Like Winners.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 3.-In a letter o a Columbia newspaper, whose editor several months ago nominated him for the Vice-Presidency on the Democratic ticket, Gov. Charles B. Aycock of North Carolina says:

"While appreciating the mention of me for the Vice-Presidency, I deem it proper to say that I not only do not seek it, but neither wish it, nor think it advisable

"If we can get the two wings of the party together and nominate some man for President who has a chance of being elected, I do not believe we ought, for the present, to lessen that chance by the nomination of a Southern man. If, when the convention meets, it becomes apparent that we cannot elect a Democratic candidate, then I believe the nomination of a Southern man for Vice-President would be a good thing.

"It would get the Northern people used to voting for a Southerner and in defending their position about it they would necessarily defend us. Then when the time comes when we can elect a Democrat we could recover a Southerner for Vicecould nominate a Southerner for President."

VIENNA, April 3 .- Die Zeit publishes an extraordinary anti-Jewish proclamation, issued by the Orthodox Association of Odessa, urging right minded Russians to follow the glorious example of their brethren who settled their accounts with the Jews at Kishineff last Easter.

It declares that the victory is incomplete. for Satan has incarnated himself in the Jews, who, allied with foreign Jews, Englishmen. In one of the front windows of Miss Gould's house at Forty-seventh street there was a beautiful pink azalea. A card presumably bearing the name of the sender of the flower, happened to hang on the basket containing the plant, where it could be seen from the sidewalk. LET THE JAPS OCCUPY SONCHON WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

Army Moving Toward the Yalu Along the Main Road-Rumored Landing in Manchuria and Move on Newchwang -Russians Prepared to Defend It.

The Japanese army in Corea is moving steadily toward the Yalu along the Pekin or main road. The Russians offered no opposition to the occupation of Sonchon. eighteen miles from Chongju, where the ast engagement was fought. Despatches from Corea attribute to the Russians much neavier losses in that engagement than they admitted in the official report.

The opportunity for an easy capture of Newchwang by the Japanese has passed. Russia now has a strong garrison and 100 big guns there to oppose a landing by the enemy. Troops are encamped along the railway all the way from Harbin down to Haicheng, a few miles east of Newchwang.

The presence of Chinese troops on the Manchurian border is looked upon as a menace to Russia, despite China's declaraion of neutrality.

JAPS NOW AT SONCHON. Occupy the Town, 40 Miles From the Yalu,

Without Opposition. Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

TORIO, April 3.-The advance guard of the Japanese in northwest Corea occupied Sonchon yesterday without opposition. Sonchon is on the Pekin road, eighteen miles west of Chongiu and forty miles south of Wiju.

When they were driven out of Chongju ast Monday the Russians withdrew in two columns, one going along the Kwoksan road and the other along the Pekin road. The Japanese advance to Sonchon was rapid. It was expected that the Russians would resist them. It is now thought improbable that there will be further opposition to the Japanese south of the Yalu Chongju is the strongest place between Ping Yang and Wiju. In addition to its natural advantages there is an old Corean fort there, which it would be hard to take if it were defended spiritedly. Russian patrols are reported to be east of the Pekin road. It is improbable that there is a considerable Russian force there. The patrols are gradually moving northward toward the Yalu River. It is reported that the ice in the Yalu is now well broken up. To cross the river now junks or pontoon bridges must be used. LONDON, April 4.-A despatch to the Daily Mail from Ping Yang says that the Russians hold the Yalu River for seventy-

The Harbin correspondent of the states that his Majesty's health is excellent, and that "there is every reason to points out that though every day lost by the Japanese gives an advantage to the Russians, nevertheless the presence of Gen. Ma, commanding a large Chinese force close to the Chino-Manchurian frontier, where he can menace the rear of the Russian army, hinders the latter's movements. It appears certain that an understanding voted for McKinley in 1898 James R. Gordon, exists between Gen. Ma and the Japanese, a leading business man of Richmond, has but it is now less complete, as the Japanese are not doing so well as was expected. Nevertheless, Gen. Ma's presence in a quarter where he insists upon remaining is intolerable to the Russians. The correspondent adds that the importance of

The Chinese Government is apparently mable to shake off its dread of Russia, as is shown by its lack of power to compel the Russian gunboat Mandjur to leave Shanghai, or to drive the Russians from the right side of the Liao River. SAYS BUSSIANS ARE POORLY, FRD.

Standard says that persons who have arrived from Manchuria report that the Russian forces are still inadequate to defend the country between Kirin and Port Arthur, upon which the Japanese are slewly advancing in three columns. The Russians are said to be badly fed, and to be totally lacking in the fighting spirit. The Japanese cavalry is admitted to be inferior to the Russian, but their infantry and artillery are greatly superior. The Japanese officials are in daily expectation of a serious engagement in southern Manchuria, but no decisive attempt to capture Port Arthur will be made until the railway is effectively disabled. REPORTS HEAVY BUSSIAN LOSSES. A despatch to the Telegraph from Seoul says that in the course of the engagement at Chongju on March 28 there was much fighting in the town itself. It is asserted in Seoul that 400 Russians were killed or wounded, and that a number were captured. The Japanese losses are given as 30. The reported that the Japanese are operating in an irregular area, the corners of which are intended to be Antung, Newchwang, Kirin and Vladivostok.

One force of 105,000 men landed opposite Takushan (in Manchuria and west of the mouth of the Yalu) and is marching
